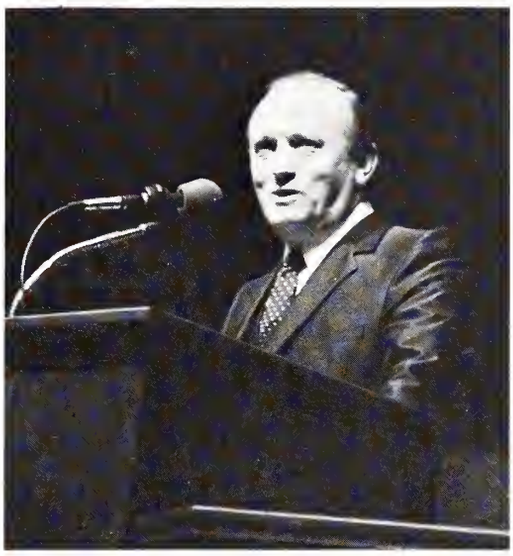
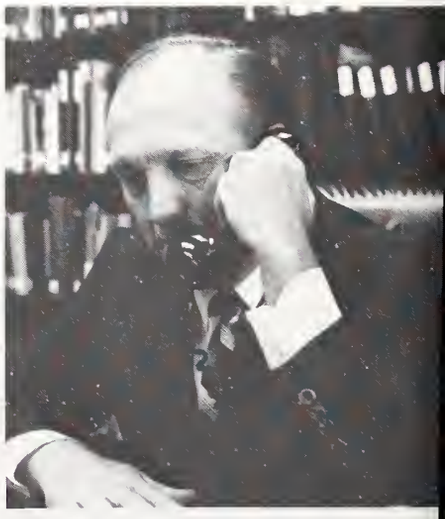
Academics



THE PRESIDENT



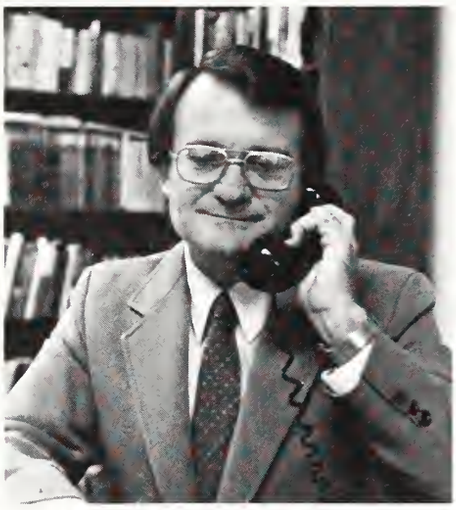
Lee College entered a period of drastic renovation—academically, physically, and spiritually—during the 1982-83 school year. Leading the college in this reform was the president of Lee College, the Reverend Dr. Ray H. Hughes.

President Hughes was actively involved in every aspect of the school's undertaking. Not only was he interested in the students' academic success, but he was concerned about each student's spiritual welfare.

During the inaugural ceremonies on September 2, 1982, President Hughes inferred that he would like to train and mold the Lee College student body into "a mighty army of witnesses for the world." In an attempt to bring this endeavor about, President Hughes served as the campus pastor. He tried to create an atmosphere of worship in chapel and in every other aspect of the students' lives.

President Hughes sometimes came across as a very strict individual seemingly demanding more than the students were willing to give up. But a closer look at this man revealed a great depth of sensitivity and love. Lee College was indeed fortunate to acquire the services of such an accomplished, open individual for the office of president.

DEAN OF THE COLLEGE



ASSOCIATE DEAN

As Dean of the College, Dr. Laud O. Vaught's main concern is to make sure that students at Lee have every opportunity to develop their field of study. With education a must today, Dr. Vaught points out that everyone should have the chance to better educate himself.

Deeply concerned with academics, Dr. Vaught feels that Lee is building a strong program in which improvement can be made as needed. He commends those students who take their studies seriously, and hopes that programs will be offered that will motivate those who do not.

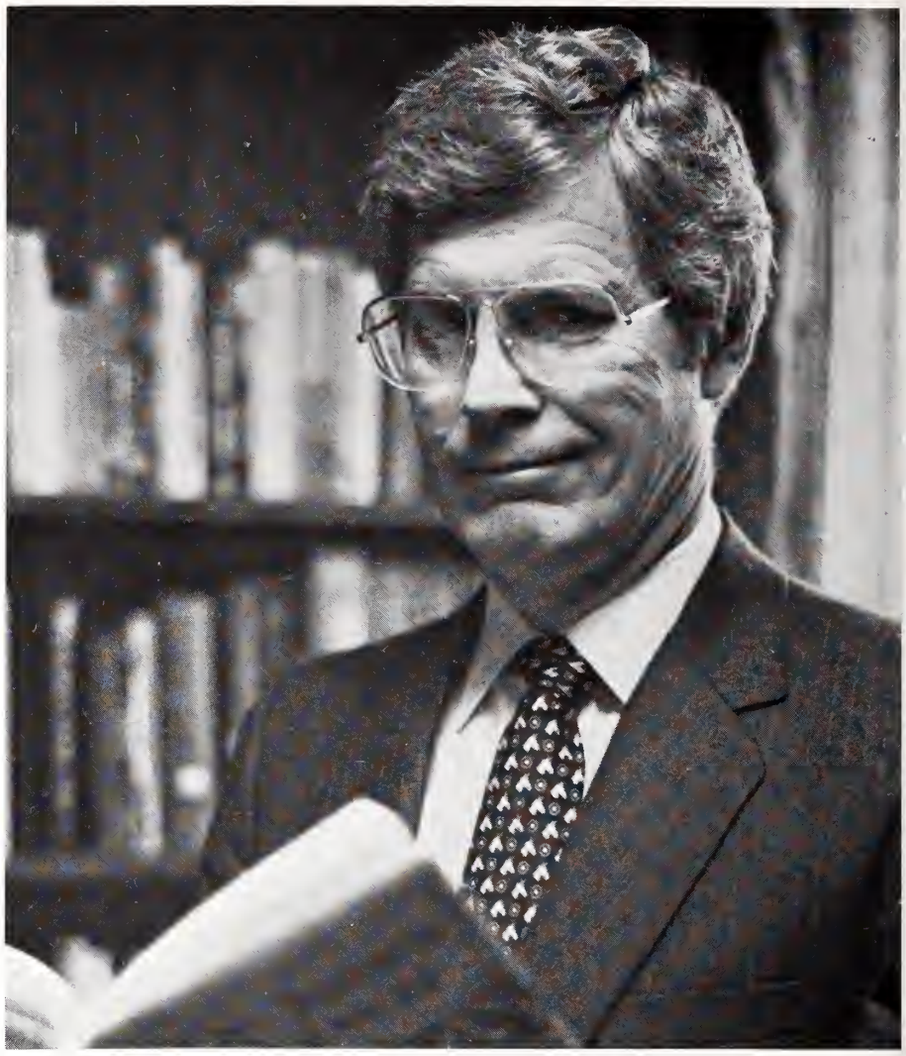
The office of the Associate Dean of the College is occupied by Dr. Ollie Lee. His main duty is that of being the Dean to the divisions of Religion, Education, and Arts and Sciences. He is involved in the administration of the academic program of the college, which includes the General Education Core.

Dr. Lee explains that it is important for us to have a basic knowledge, and to realize its value in practice. That is the reason for the school's policy of requiring students to take courses in areas other than their major field of study. Dr. Lee believes that Lee College offers a proper balance of academic and Christian life, but he realizes that the ultimate balance is determined by each student, individually. As a result, he firmly believes that the Christian perspective of the college gives Lee students an advantage over people attending secular schools.

Dean of Students

The Dean of Students is the man who, in his own words, "is the representative of the students to the Administration." He directs Student Services, a department with which the average student becomes well acquainted during his stay at Lee College. Though the scope of his duties includes such areas as campus events and organizations, it is discipline, in the eyes of the students, that he is most closely associated with.

Mr. Duncan realizes that many students do not like to be "reminded" of what they should and should not do while attending Lee College. He feels, however, that the students ". . . will in time realize the real concern of the Administration in having numerous school rules." The Dean of Students feels that this year there has been great improvement in the acceptance of the Administration by the students, but he is quick to point out that the students often make accusations without really knowing the administrators. He believes that in time, however, the students and faculty will make the transition needed to complement the current administration.



Paul E. Duncan—Dean of Students

Board of Directors

The Board of Directors of Lee College has had a year in which change has been the most apparent element. The Board has made many difficult administrative decisions, in keeping with what is best for the college. Present problems, as well as the immediate future, and expansion of the college, have been considered and acted upon this year.

Being the governing influence on the campus of Lee College, the Board has been faced with some difficult circumstances this year, such as the problems of transition between administrators. However, the Board has successfully emerged from these circumstances, bringing with them the future of Lee College.

Education in the Mail

Ray Hughes, Jr. serves as the Director

The Continuing Education Department was formed for those who wished to complete college programs, yet for some reason they are unable to attend the college. The Department has been very effective in providing an alternative for such students.

It has become an important part of the campus for many students who are in residence at the college also. The Continuing Education program enables students to eliminate a few hours of their requirements which must be completed on campus.

Courses are limited, for the most part, to general core requirements and to biblical and Christian studies. For this reason, many of the Continuing Education students are pastors who wish to increase their knowledge of the Word of God through these courses.

A Behavioral Society

During the past few decades, the interest in Social and Behavioral Sciences has experienced a tremendous boost. People have begun to study about themselves. They want a better understanding of their inner emotions, reactions, and of the implications that the consequences of these would have in history.

At Lee College, the Department of Behavioral and Social Sciences has become one of vital importance, and the number of majors has increased. Christian psychologists, sociologists and historians are a necessity in our present world, and upon this fact the minds of the department's faculty dwell.

An education in any of these disciplines at Lee College is of no less quality than that received at most secular colleges. Lee students are taught to realize that man is not his own master, but rather it is God who is the master. This perspective is a necessity for those who have aspirations of being a Christian psychologist, sociologist, or historian.

Not only Preachers . . .

Faithful to its claim as a Christian college, Lee College graduates each of its students with a minor in Religion. This minor comes as a result of the required eighteen hours of classes taken within the Departments of Bible and Theology and Christian Education and Church Ministries with a knowledge of the Old Testament, New Testament, Christian Thought and Christian Ethics. A Lee College graduate is provided with a workable understanding of the Bible.

The Department of Bible and Theology also prepares students to minister as pastors. Pastors of the day are now called upon to serve in several areas other than just preaching. It is for this reason that the Department encourages its students to complete a core of courses which equips them to be effective in public communications, as well as in sermon delivery.

. . . but also Teachers

The church of today, more than ever before, needs an effective teaching program. Hence the Lee College Department of Christian Education and Church Ministries plays a vital role in preparing church workers.

With the goal of training church workers other than preachers as its main objective, the Department encompasses areas such as teaching in the Sunday School and Christian Education. The Department is committed to producing effective church leaders who understand the need of all Christians for a quality education in our beliefs and in living a Christian life in a secular world.

LIFE IN THE FAST LANE

In today's world, business has a phenomenal effect—upon career opportunities, upon lifestyles, and even upon the style of clothing that people wear. Especially now, with increased technology and the introduction of the computer age, business is of critical importance to life in the United States. It is no surprise then that the number of business majors is relatively high, not only at Lee College, but in practically all colleges.

The Department of Business realizes the importance of the need for businesspersons and therefore strives to prepare students for life in a competitive career world. Nevertheless, at Lee there is a strong emphasis placed on the ethics of business as a means of success. This very fine department has supported this ethical theory, and it is quite successful in presenting the needed curricular information in a Christian perspective.

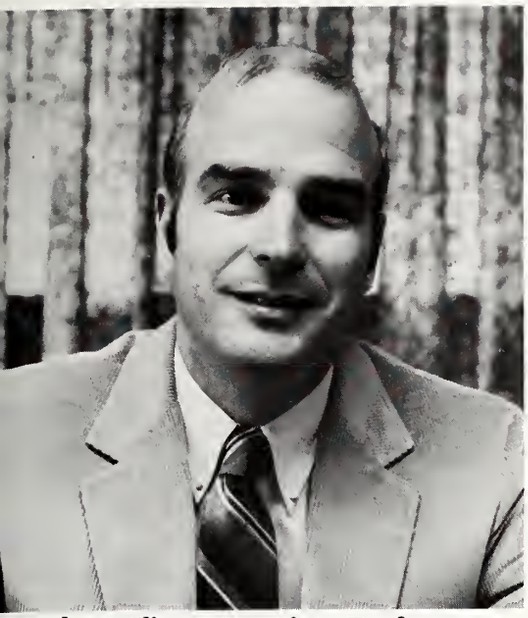
PREPARING LOVING TEACHERS



Herbert Cline—Associate Professor

The importance of teachers in today's society is evident more now than ever in history. With difficult societal problems, chaotic classrooms, and many teachers leaving the classroom, the Departments of Elementary Education and Secondary, Health and Physical Education are becoming increasingly important.

Realizing the existence of such problems, these Departments are committed to producing educators who will be prepared to face such turbulent times and the classroom results from these times. Both Departments, in order to meet new Tennessee state requirements, have added several new classes to the curriculum. According to one Elementary Education major, some of the new courses are "among the very best courses offered at Lee."

Say it with a Smile

Carolyn Dirksen—Associate Professor

The importance of a good working knowledge of the English language is rarely questioned by anyone living in English speaking countries. Behind a pulpit, or a counter, or a lab desk, it is a necessity for effective verbal communication. The Language Arts Department is fully aware of this and does not miss opportunities to make students conscious of it.

The faculty offers an extensive program of courses in all areas necessary to be able to effectively communicate. These courses range from freshman composition courses to upper level literature reviews, and from speech and communications to radio and television. The faculty hopes that through these courses students will become better Christian witnesses, users of a more powerful and effective language to communicate the Word of God.

Also offered by the department are courses in foreign languages. Foreign languages are by tradition part of a complete education. The faculty considers that whether a person travels abroad or not, he should learn a foreign language. Through this language, one will learn about other people's heritage and culture, and therefore find a better understanding and appreciation of human life.

MUSIC . . .

it's Universal

Music has been called the "universal language." People visiting different countries may not be able to communicate linguistically, but whenever music is played, performed or heard, there is an element of communion felt among strangers and friends alike.

Since music plays such a vital role in the lives of many people, the Music and Fine Arts Department of Lee College strives to provide a variety of course options. Students are encouraged to participate in some aspect of the department in an effort to create a well-rounded, healthy personality.

The department offers vocal ensembles, such as the Lee Singers—under the direction of Jim Burns—the Ladies of Lee—Roosevelt Miller, director—and the Campus Choir, conducted by Phillip Thomas, as well as many others. Plus there is a wide range of instrumental opportunities available, including the Jazz Band Ensemble and the Lee College Orchestra. The department also offers a student excellent opportunities to develop his talent in the field of Art. This aspect of the curriculum is headed by John Simmons (see photo page 135), who truly gives meaning to the departmental name of Music and "Fine Arts."

Searching for the Answers to the Questions of Tomorrow

The Department of Natural Sciences and Mathematics provides Lee College students with an excellent learning opportunity. The purpose of science is to acquire more knowledge of the world in which we live. At Lee, this knowledge is combined with biblical and spiritual principles which enable the Christian student to attain a thorough knowledge of scientific skills.

The faculty realizes that with each new advance in truth and knowledge, there is also an advance in wrongdoing such as environmental destruction. Our science and mathematics department contends that it is not the discovery of truth that causes the problem but, instead, the application and value judgments made concerning new found truths. By looking for truth and the answers to future problems, we learn about God.

A NEW BEGINNING

On September 2, 1982 at the Charles W. Conn Center for Performing Arts and Christian Studies, the fourteenth President of Lee College was inaugurated into office. Returning to serve a second term as president, the Reverend Dr. Ray H. Hughes accepted the responsibility of this office gravely and with great humility.

Presiding at the formal opening was the General Overseer of the Churches of God, Dr. E. C. Thomas; special music was presented by the Lee Singers and David and Virginia Horton. Dr. Paul L. Walker, Chairman of the Lee College Board of Directors, gave the address, encouraging the faculty, staff, and student body of Lee College to stand behind and support the new administration during the weeks and months to follow.

At the conclusion of the evening the General Executives of the Churches of God, the Lee College Board of Directors and the entire congregation joined in a special prayer to solicit God's anointing on the new president.

Dr. E. C. Thomas prayed the invocation.

Dr. Paul Walker delivered the evening's message.

God's anointing is sought for Dr. Hughes.

The Lee Singers ministered in song.

The Hortons sang of God's love.

OVERCOMERS THROUGH CHRIST

Fall Convocation once again proved to be a time of rededication for both students and staff members. In addition, each of those attending was challenged by the dynamic sermons preached during the revival.

The Reverend William A. Davis served as the morning speaker, choosing "Overcoming Spiritual Giants" as his theme for the week's sermons. He challenged each of us to take a stand for the Lord and to be overcomers through the power of the Holy Spirit.

The evening services were an inspiration to all as the Reverend Lamar Vest delivered an excellent series of messages. The Lord moved mightily in each of the services, and many students and visitors received extensive spiritual blessings.

The power of God was felt throughout the entire campus.

ANCHORS AWAY

Saturday, October 2, was a picturesque day, as over 100 Lee College students traveled to the Hiwassee River for Rotaract's annual raft race. The twenty-six teams lined up, with aspirations of being the first to cross the finish line. Adrenalin was flowing freely, and the air of competition was felt by all.

As is the tradition in raft races, there were many mishaps. There were the usual overturned rafts and accidental "swimmers." In addition, the intensity of the sun's rays was an obstacle which many of the participants were not prepared for. Some rafters were easily identified for days afterward by their sunburned faces and arms.

Several teams used paddles other than the ones provided to try to get ahead. It was even reported that one team took its raft onto the river bank and tried to win by carrying it across the finish line. The winning team, however, comprised of John Eldridge, Eddie Brown, Joy Hancock, and Debbie Colon, proved that good hard work is the best policy. That team, which started out in the eleventh spot, ended up in the first position in only one hour and thirty minutes.

Students anxiously await their turn to enter the water.

Competition was keen as the rafts battled to win.

A Golden Tradition

"That blue doll just has to be here somewhere."

The men in black and gray once again sponsored Sadie Hawkins Day this year—for the twentieth year in a row. One of the "biggest events on campus," this year as always, Sadie Hawkins provided each girl on campus that golden opportunity.

Once the dilemma of who pays for the hayride was settled, the worrying was over—at least for most. Those who asked a guy that they barely knew were a bit uneasy, but Danny Murray, serving as Master of Ceremonies at the event, made everyone feel comfortable as he insisted that the easiest way to get to know one's date was to "salute" him or her.

As the wagons were reloaded, and some students looked back on the O'Bannons' farm, they commented that despite threatening clouds which had hung over the campus all afternoon, the night had turned out to be perfect. How appropriate this seemed, as the Lee College students gathered to share an enjoyable evening together and to celebrate a beautiful tradition.

There were never any boring nights in the dorms.

Day After Day

Days filled with scheduled classes and evenings crowded with studies and social events characterized the normal routine for students. Each student dealt with the tensions and frustrations brought about by this rigor in different ways.

Some students became professionals at making other people laugh. This included activities from having a conversation with a mailbox at the Cleveland Mall, to the short-lived craze of "Barfing."

The serious student spent many long nights "burning the midnight oil," only to find out that when he felt like letting off some steam, everyone else in the dorm had already acquired two hours of sleep.

The overly-concerned student spent his days worrying about the poor lighting in the Conn Center, and whether or not the sidewalks would be cleared of the snow before the next morning's schedule of classes.

HORROR OF HORRORS

A traditional Halloween consists of ghosts and goblins, but for Lee College, Halloween would not be complete without the Delta Zeta Tau Creature Feature. Each year the ladies of Delta Zeta Tau present a horror film to the student body which purposes to stir the campus into the feeling of Halloween.

Upon entering the Old Auditorium, students were met with an eerie atmosphere, spine-tingling shrieks, and a host of traditional as well as newly created Halloween characters. After the audience was seated and the introductions made, the film, "A Halloween Marathon," appeared on the silver screen. Much to the delight of the crowd, the film entailed coverage of all the noteworthy horror films ever produced. It contained dramatic scenes from "Abbott and Costello Meet the Mummy" to "Bride of Frankenstein," "Son of Frankenstein," "Daughter of Frankenstein," and finally, "Frankenstein: the Original."

"Would you look at that!"

The audience enjoyed the festivities between reels.

Roller Rage

Last year Lee students kept the Hot Wheels Skating Rink busy. Students went to the arena looking for a little excitement on an otherwise uneventful Friday or Saturday night. Because skating is a relatively inexpensive way to occupy a few hours, Lee Students were more than willing to show their support of the sponsoring organization, and to forget about school for a little while.

On September 21, the men of Alpha Gamma Chi sponsored the first skating party of the year. This gave the incoming freshmen a chance to become acquainted with fellow classmates. Both the skating competitions and the musical selections helped to make the evening a most memorable one.

Sertoma got into the act by sponsoring a skating party on November 12. Although there were a few bumps, bruises, and "accidental mishaps," the evening's activity was much the same as the party held in September.

"The little train that could?"

Some students needed a little help.

"Oops!"

BLOOD . . . the river of life

"We need your blood!" Sound familiar? These were the words that Lee College students once again heard the Student Government Association members cry in an effort to solicit blood donations for the Red Cross. This year, with the demise of the gymnasium, the Red Cross set up their station on the north side of the Administration Building. According to a representative from the Red Cross, this is the first college in the area at which they used the mobile unit.

In the past, stations had been set up in the gymnasium. This created a major problem, however, because many students and faculty members refused to donate blood in front of others. In the privacy of the Bloodmobile, however, students and faculty members felt much more comfortable. This may explain the increase of donors over previous years. Lee College, for the first time in several years, reached its projected quota of donors.

"If I'm not able to give, just tell me."

From May 1 to October 31, the 1982 edition of the World's Fair was open in Knoxville, Tennessee. The highlight of the Fair included exhibitions from nations all around the world. From these exhibitions many Lee students were able to experience the diversity of cultures from faraway lands. Although the Fair was the major reason for making the trip to Knoxville, some avid football fans admitted to the fact that the Tennessee-Alabama game's presence did influence their decision to go.

Thanksgiving Weekend

A banner proclaimed the 1982 Homecoming Theme.

Homecoming is synonymous with Thanksgiving at Lee, and it is one of the most enjoyable times of the year for Lee students as well as for returning alumni. The theme, "New Horizons with Old Friends," was carried throughout the Thanksgiving weekend.

Dr. Hollis Gause delivered the morning message, Lorrie Luke was crowned Homecoming Queen, the Flames "flickered out" during the Homecoming Game, and Dr. E. C. Thomas was chosen "Distinguished Alumnus" during another successful musical presentation by the Department of Music and Fine Arts.

Traditionally, the presentation of the Homecoming Court and the announcement of the Homecoming Queen are done during the halftime activities of the basketball game. However, the tightness of the Homecoming schedule and the fact that the referees were one hour late for the basketball game coupled to force the premature announcement of the Homecoming Queen.

Despite the fact that the Homecoming Court was used as a stall tactic to occupy the crowd, this did not reduce the excitement as Lorrie Luke was crowned 1982-83 Homecoming Queen of Lee College.

Campus Construction

As soon as the spring semester of 1982 was completed, renovation of Walker Hall was begun. This project was largely undertaken by Mr. and Mrs. Don Medlin of Caruthersville, Missouri, and saw Walker Hall transformed from a campus eyesore to the newest residence hall. During the Homecoming festivities, Walker Hall was renamed Medlin Hall.

In the 1983 fall semester, construction began on the new Paul Dana Walker Memorial Arena at a cost of $750,000. The 18,000 square feet, 2,500 seating capacity arena is designed to serve as an incentive for recruitment of new athletes, and to help expand the physical education curriculum of the school. Athletes in Ministry, an outreach of the Mount Paran Church of God in Atlanta, Georgia, is conducting a drive to raise funds for the construction of the new Lee athletic facilities.

Sensing the Spirit of Christmas

The final weeks before the end of the Fall Semester marked the entrance of the Christmas season on the Lee College campus. Although this special season was overpowered by the hectic schedule, it did manage to break a little of the monotony of the daily routine.

Christmas was observed in many different ways around the campus. Various clubs held their annual parties, friends exchanged cards and gifts, and the student body as a whole generated within their hearts the love, peace, and joy that make the Christmas season unique.

SPRING CONVOCATION

Lee College is first and foremost a Christian college. Though a spectator could tell this at any given time during the year, at no time is it more obvious than during convocation. A feeling of spiritual zeal and expectancy is very evident throughout this week of revival. The spring convocation this year was certainly an inspiring and uplifting experience for the students of Lee College.

F. J. May was the morning speaker. An accomplished preacher, Brother May challenged the hearts of both faculty members and students with his messages on commitment. Despite the fact that the class schedule was only slightly altered, students did not feel inhibited about worshiping. The Lord richly blessed through Brother May's inspiring sermons, and the lives of many students were changed as they made a commitment to God during the altar services.

The evening speaker, Carl Richardson, held the entire audience at complete attention with his witty yet challenging sermons. The students became completely involved in worship, as many students were saved and/or baptized in the Holy Spirit during the services.

The spirit of convocation was not soon forgotten. Lives were changed during the revival, and the newborn spiritual persons continued to grow throughout the remainder of the semester.

WAITING PATIENTLY

Registration—that 12 letter word that elicits from students a yawn, a frown, or even a tear of boredom. Memories of computers breaking down, mistakes on class schedules, and problems with the pre-printed bills—all of these are part of a typical student's reaction to registration. These problems and many more occurred as expected during registration for the Spring Semester. Computer breakdowns were the major complaints of most students. Some spent hours in the registration line, but for the most part students enjoyed socializing with friends as they waited and after all, socializing is what many Lee College students do best.

Students check their printouts before finishing registration.

Practically every student at Lee prays for snow when the weather turns cold. The snow may give students a chance to study for a test, type a paper, or just catch up on some much-needed rest.

This year it snowed on a couple of occasions; however, it did not accumulate enough to bring even a short reprieve from our hectic schedules. Students were up at six o'clock a.m. waiting to hear cancellations, but they were disappointed to hear that classes would meet as usual.

Though classes still met, both faculty members and students were lighthearted and good-spirited as they enjoyed the beauty of a Winter Wonderland.

Love at LEE

Love at Lee . . . That's what Valentine's Day brought to the campus this year. As usual, the florists in Cleveland were very busy trying to fill the orders of Lee College students. A rush at the post office made the normally very busy workers follow an even more hectic schedule than usual. The Pioneers for Christ serenaded dozens of students to whom someone wanted to say a very special "I love you." Even more students were wished a Happy Valentine's Day in Sigma Nu Sigma's Valentine Love Lines. Valentine's Day was indeed a very busy day. It's a good thing that it comes only once a year. Otherwise no one would ever get any work done.

Games People Play

Almost anything goes at Derby Day, sponsored each year by the Men of Rotaract. This year was no exception, despite the fact that the annual event was held in the Conn Center. Eleven teams gathered to compete in the series of events. The members of the S.T.E.P. Club received the winning trophy, while Sigma Nu Sigma followed in a very close second place. In addition to these awards, over $1,000 in cash and prizes, donated by area merchants, was given to spectators.

Quiet Please,

There's a Lady on Stage

The 21st annual Lee College pageant truly was a "Parade of Favorites" as eight lovely young ladies charmed their way into the hearts of parents, family, and friends.

From the well-constructed opening number, the pageant swiftly moved into the introduction of parents and contestants, and then into the talent portion of the program. After a brief intermission, the pageant continued with the Evening Gown competition, and then proceeded to the opening of the envelopes. The Academic and Talent Awards went to Denise Tyler. Miss Congeniality was awarded to Stephanie Lewis, and First Runner-Up went to Denise Tyler. The evening concluded with the crowning of the 1983 Parade of Favorites Winner—Miss Trinette Wingo.

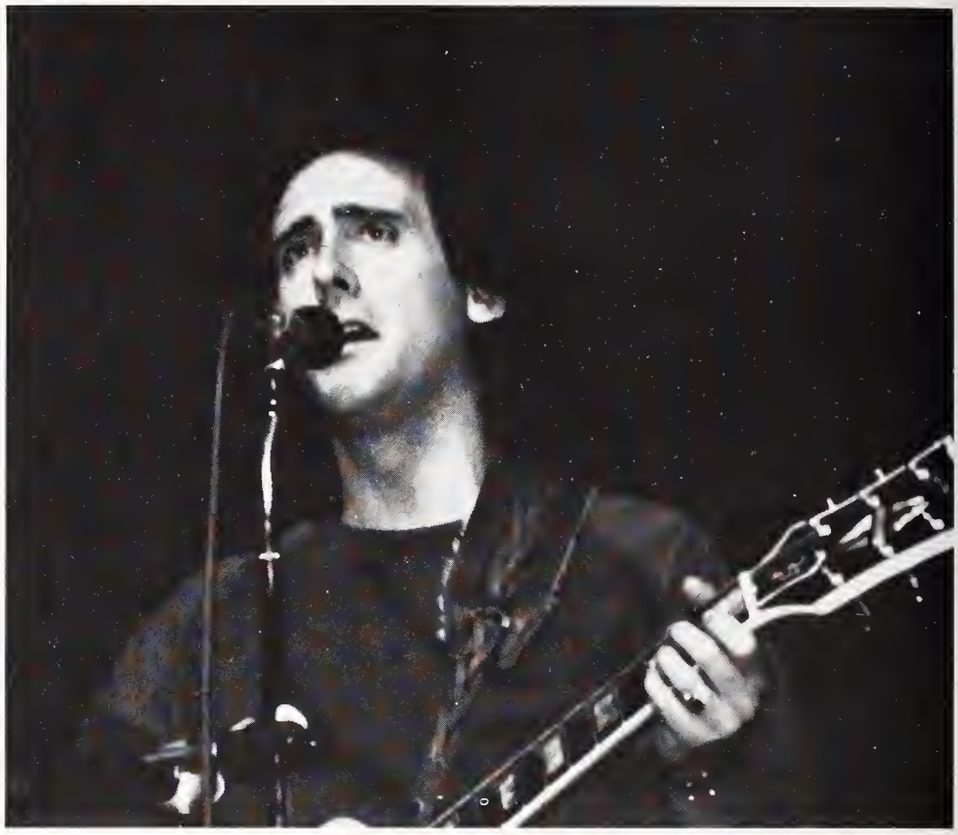
Musically Speaking

Music is the heart of Lee College. Students wake up to the sound of music. They are continuously singing a tune going to and from classes, and over 25 percent of the student body are involved in some type of Music ministry. However, on occasion, performing artists are brought in to add variety to the musical program. Such groups and individual artists include the Happy Goodman Family, the Chattanooga Symphony, Dallas Holm, and the Imperials.

Along with these concerts, come the Fall and Spring Music Festivals. These events feature the excellent musical ability of campus music groups. Smaller ensembles and individual musicians are provided the opportunity to minister in the Chapel services.



Dallas Holm touched the hearts and lives of those present at his concert.

Andrus, Blackwood and Company performed their 50's version of "Jesus Is So Wonderful."

Truth produced both a full and an effective sound in their ministry.

Lee Singers

During his fifth year as conductor and coordinator of the Lee College Singers, Dr. Jim Burns has continued the group's tradition of musical excellence. The group serves as a training ground for potential ministers of music and public school teachers, and is this year composed of 48 vocalists and 11 instrumentalists.

Representing Lee College, as well as the Church of God, the Lee Singers travel throughout the United States and abroad. The choir's performances this year included several weekend tours, one major Fall tour, the hosting of the Fall Music Festival, performing at the National Church Music Conference, three performances with the Chattanooga Symphony Orchestra, one major Spring tour, and an appearance at the National Association of Evangelicals in Orlando, Florida. The group has also planned a summer tour of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.

Although the Singers were hard at work during the year, their emphasis was placed on preparation for the "Russian Tour." As representatives of the United States, the Church of God, and Lee College, we can truly say . . . "TO RUSSIA WITH LOVE!"

Upsilon Xi is Lee College's oldest social-service organization. Since its origin in 1962, the Men of Upsilon Xi have strived to uphold the purposes of the club: to acquire Christian fellowship, to enhance scholarly pursuits, and to exemplify Christ in all activities.

The scripture verse of the club is I Corinthians 10:31, which states: "Whether therefore ye eat, or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God."

Upsilon Xi began the Fall semester in a traditional way by sponsoring Sadie Hawkins Day and the well-enjoyed hayride. They also published Reflections, a convocation devotional book in both the Fall and Spring semesters.

Probably the most significant activity the Men of Upsilon Xi sponsored was the Jeffery Harvard Scholarship Fund. This scholarship was given to deserving young men on campus who exemplified the purposes of the club. At the close of the Spring semester, the Men of Upsilon Xi were hard at work preparing the groundwork for the establishment of another Lee College scholarship fund.

The Ladies of Lee

LADIES of LEE

The Ladies of Lee is an all feminine choral ensemble. Their purpose is to explore beautiful choral music and perform music from the period of Bach to the present. Most of their repertoire is sacred although they do enjoy doing secular pieces from time to time. They consider their tour presentations as a ministry in song.

The goal of the Ladies of Lee is to acquaint all choristers with a well-balanced variety of treble choral literature and at the same time acquaint them with the ministry of sacred music throughout the College, the Church of God, the local community and various foreign countries.

The Ladies of Lee have achieved another successful year of their unique style under the direction of Dr. Roosevelt Miller.

The Ladies of Sigma Nu Sigma strive to benefit church, school, and community through projects of service. With I Corinthians 13 as their motto, the Ladies have tried to show Christian charity in all aspects of their lives, both individually and in their involvement with the campus through club activities.

The organization contributed to the campus activities by sponsoring "A Holiday Extravaganza" at Christmas and a Spring luau. In addition, the organization sponsored both a Christmas party and a Spring picnic for foster children in Cleveland. Once again the Valentine Love Lines were sponsored by the Ladies in blue. In an effort to benefit all areas of campus life, Sigma also provided a chapel service this Spring.

Campus Choir

One of the largest organizations on campus and the biggest choir is the Campus Choir. Each semester this choir presents its own musical program and participates in other programs. Although the choir did not present a major work of their own to the student body during the second semester, they did participate in the convocation services. During the first semester the Campus Choir presented "Song of Exultation" to the Lee College Community.

Evangelistic Singers

The main purpose of the Evangelistic Singers is to spread the love of Jesus through singing and dramatizing the gospel. The Evangelistic Singers really blessed the Lee College student body, faculty/staff, and visitors during the Fall Convocation with their soulful message in song. The singers of this group have ministered to several churches in the local area and surrounding states. They also sponsored a bake sale in the various dormitories on campus to raise funds for their ministries.

Alpha Gamma Chi

Alpha Gamma Chi was begun in 1963. The club was organized with the intent to create a framework and atmosphere in which scholarship, Christian leadership, and social service by young men of Lee College could be enjoined and promoted. As stated in the constitution of ATX, the express aims and purposes of the club are to participate in school activities, to add to the cultural and intellectual atmosphere of the college, to promote school spirit, and to develop unity and understanding among campus groups and clubs.

Alpha Gamma Chi has sponsored and participated in several activities this year. They have planned two skating parties for the student body, participated in various service projects on campus, and brought to campus the musical sounds of the Imperials.

In October, about the time of several goblin sightings in Cleveland, the perennial Creature Feature was again a success for the girls in red. On a more serious note, the Ladies of Delta Zeta Tau represented Lee College, and more importantly Christ, as they provided needy families of the community with delicious Thanksgiving food baskets.

In addition to meeting the needs of the student body and the community, the faculty/staff also received service from Delta Zeta Tau, Lee College's oldest women's organization. The Ladies served at the annual Christmas party and made available the ever-popular Easter egg hunt for the children of the faculty/staff.

Missions Club

The Missions Club of Lee College still feels the continuing duty of the Great Commission presented by Christ. The main purpose of this organization is to provide an overall view of worldwide Christian services. Each member of the Missions Club has an opportunity to be involved in missionary work. The students thoroughly enjoy the relationship they have with a variety of incoming missionaries.

Pioneers for Christ

The Lee College Pioneers for Christ is the largest club and one of the most active clubs on the campus. Its many activities this year included invasion, jail and hospital visitations; weekly nursing home services; and Forward in Faith Prayer Vigil.

The club motto, "Saved to Serve," best describes the purpose of the organization. Every day the club sponsors some ministry—to the student, to the local church, to the community, and to the entire Church of God.

One of the main activities of the club is the training of students in lay witnessing. This is accomplished through the annual Personal Evangelism Seminar conducted by Leonard Albert and the Seminar on the Cults taught by Charles Beach. These seminars and classes provide students with the training necessary for effective lay witnessing.

It is the goal of Pioneers for Christ to remind the church in these last days that as Christ went out to where the people were, so must we. People are not found always in our churches; they are in their homes, at the shopping malls, in the hospitals—wherever; we must go out and reach them.

Some needed changes have been brought about by the Student Government Association this year. The Constitution was completely revised. In addition, the S.G.A. made progress in the renewal of the dormitory court, which was used quite extensively.

S.G.A. was involved in Homecoming and Lee Day activities. The organization once again sponsored tree-lighting and refreshments at Christmas. In addition, the members put much time and effort into the 21st annual Parade of Favorites, "Quiet Please. . . . There's a Lady on Stage."

The Miracle Workers

The task of producing the 1982-83 Vindauga fell to a staff with little experience on a previous Vindauga staff. Only the Editor, Roby Walker, Dr. Humbertson, and Jana Hanlin had worked with the Lee College annual before. This inexperience, combined with peer pressure, led to drastic changes in the format and production processes of the Vindauga. A cut in the budget also led to the dilemma by reducing the color and total pages of the Vindauga.

Although the production of the Vindauga saw many problems, staff unity prevailed. There were many last-second calls made from the desk of the Editor to staff photographers to take pictures of various professors, students, and campus activities. One staff member, Cheryl Vaughan, volunteered her services to continue to write articles even after leaving Lee in the fall to transfer to another college. Tammy McAtee, an unofficial associate editor, helped in the writing and editing of articles, and supported the Editor from the preliminary plans to meeting the final deadline.

Intramural Football

The Sheiks finished the season with an impressive record.

Although Lee College does not have an active Varsity Football program that competes within the NCAA, it does have players who possess the speed, physical attributes, and endurance necessary to create a successful football program.

This year's intramural program was no exception to the rule. In fact, most of the games played had a margin of only six to twelve points. During the second week of play there was even a game played at Bradley Junior High that was affectionately known as the "Mud Bowl."

The season champions, the Sheiks, compiled an impressive 7-1 record and ended their season with a 52-6 romp of SALT in the Championship game.

Ladies with Class

This year the Lee College Lady Flames entered the season ready to prove, without question, that they had the ability, skill, and experience that constitute a superb team. The 1982-83 Lady Flames demonstrated that they had these qualities by establishing themselves as one of the top-ranked teams in the conference.

The new head coach of the Lady Flames this year was Deborah Whitlow, who brought with her a different concept for women basketball. Coach Whitlow stated, "One of our problems with unity in the past has been that some people felt that athletics belong on the outside of Christianity, and that ladies don't belong in sports at all. Now that this attitude is beginning to change, we can become a more unified body."

Last but not least, team spirit and togetherness contributed much to the success of the 1982-83 Lady Flames. Coach Whitlow initiated team devotions as a vital part of the team's spirit. Coach Whitlow, together with the leadership of the Senior players, provided Lee fans with another exciting basketball season.

LEE COLLEGE FLAMES GO UP IN SMOKE

A new coach, new players, no home gym, and even a new name—all of these were causes for a rebuilding season for the Lee College basketball team. The Flames, under the direction of Herb Cline and assistants Ron Evans and Steve DuBose, brought us an exciting rebuilding season, especially toward the end.

Starting the season ranked at the bottom of the collegiate poll, the newly-named Flames spent long hours in practice before the season opener. A good many of the players were freshmen with no college experience, but they proved to be true athletes; not giving up after losing the first twenty games. The Flames had a cooperation and unity among themselves that gave the home crowd exciting edge-of-their-seats wins, including the memorable buzzer-bomb against Covenant with only three seconds left. Senior Thomas Williams commented after the win, "This was definitely my biggest win!"

Williams along with Stan Sherlin were the only two seniors on the team. Returning from the years of the Vikings, Stan and Thomas were a major force in leading this young team to the confidence they needed. Freshman Jamie Maxey was an outstanding asset, as was Bob Fletcher, who transferred from Berea College to play with the Flames. He started the second half of the season and led the Flames to their first win by ten points over Bryan College. Fletcher led the scoring in many of the games. Every game played by the Flames showed improvement over the one before, exposing the drive and dedication of this young team.

The future is extremely bright for the Lee College Flames. The experience of this year, the "breaking in" of the underclassmen and the coach, and the new insignia all suggest definite excitement for '83-'84. These factors will contribute to the intensity that will be felt as the Flames open the '83 season in the new 2,500 seat Paul Dana Walker Memorial Arena. Lee College fans have a team to take pride in—now and forever!

Stand Up and Cheer

The Lee Cheerleaders started their busy schedule of supporting the Flames long before school started. In the summer, Tonette Perez, Cyndi Locklear, and Synthia Hendricks attended a clinic at UTK where they earned a superior and excellent ratings.

Bringing back what they learned, the three started workouts with prospective cheerleaders in the fall of '82. Eventually a squad of ten girls was assembled, and the Lee College community had something to cheer about—the first Flames—cheerleaders.

Sponsors Naomi Trimble and JoAnne Higginbotham were productive in helping the girls sport new outfits with various fund-raising projects. A team of guys helped out the girls in the fall to initiate the support needed for the young Flames basketball team.

Throughout a struggling year, the cheerleaders were the fans when no one could be there to support the team, and they have a lot to be commended for. The Flame was kept alive by a group of talented and spirited young women who were always there to "Keep on the Firing Line!"

The Cheerleaders attempt to get the crowd involved in every game.

Tennis Anyone?

For the sixth year in a row, Lee has had to rely on the abilities of student-coaches for the organization of competitive tennis. This year, however, the team benefited from the skill of experienced players. Although their experience did not include any previous membership on the Lee squad, they did prove to be quite capable of defeating their opponents.

ORGANIZATION

As Chairman of the Department of Christian Education and Church Ministries, Dr. J. Martin Baldree carefully instructs his students to become effective Christian workers. To become an effective worker, Dr. Baldree emphasizes dedication and ORGANIZATION.

When a student walks into Dr. Baldree's office, the effect is total shock. Yet, when asked for a piece of literature, Dr. Baldree pauses . . . turns . . . and pulls the requested literature from nowhere.

DONNA STEPHENSON

Donna Stephenson, daughter of Ruth Stephenson, is a Cleveland resident majoring in Elementary Education. She was elected to Alpha Chi Honor Society and was also a member of the Student National Education Association. Her academic performance put her on the Dean's list and the National Dean's List.

Donna wants to gain a couple of years of teaching experience (in Cleveland) and then begin to work on her Master's degree.

DAVID ALAN CRICK

David Alan Crick, son of Robert D. and Jeanette Crick, is a Cleveland resident. A Mathematics major and English minor, he maintained an overall grade point average of 3.8 and kept a 4.0 in both his major and minor. He was involved in intramural soccer, Alpha Chi Honor Society, Tennessee Academy of Science, Tennessee Association for Educational Data Systems, and the Math Club.

David plans to attend graduate school to further his studies in Information and Computer Science.

DINING HALL

Tucked away in our subconscious is an idyllic vision. We see ourselves on a long trip that spans the continent. We are traveling by train. Through the windows we sit in the passing scene of cars on nearby highways, of children waving at a crossing, of cattle grazing on a distant hillside, of smoke pouring from a power plant, of row upon row of corn and wheat, of flatlands and valleys, of mountains and rolling hillsides, of city skylines and village halls.

But uppermost in our minds is the final destination. On a certain day at a certain hour we will pull into the station. Bands will be playing and flags waving. Once we get there so many wonderful dreams will come true and the pieces of our lives will fit together like a completed jigsaw puzzle. How restlessly we pace the aisles, resenting the minutes for loitering—waiting, waiting, waiting for the station.

"When we reach the station, that will be it!" we cry. "When I'm 21." "When I buy a new 450 SL Mercedes Benz!" "When I put the last kid through college." "When I have paid off the mortgage!" "When I get a promotion." "When I reach the age of retirement, I shall live happily ever after!"

Sooner or later we must realize there is no station, no one place to arrive at once and for all. The true joy of life is the trip. The station is only a dream. It constantly outdistances us.

"Relish the moment" is a good motto, especially when coupled with Psalm 118:24: "This is the day which the Lord hath made; we will rejoice and be glad in it." It isn't the burdens of today that drive men mad. It is the regrets over yesterday and the fear of tomorrow. Regret and fear are twin thieves who rob us of today.

So, stop pacing the aisles and counting the miles. Instead, climb more mountains, eat more ice cream, go barefoot more often, swim more rivers, watch more sunsets, laugh more, cry less. Life must be lived as we go along. The station will come soon enough.
